PENNSYLVANIA TRAINING FOR FACILITATORS WORKSHOP

Day 1 Session 1

Objective - Overview and Modeling; the basics of AVP facilitating Lead Team

Hours: 8:00 am – 12:30 pm (including lunch break)

05 General Introduction. Begin with welcome and introduction of facilitation team. The main objective of this workshop is to present the first phase of training for participants to become effective AVP workshop facilitators. Participants will learn by observing experienced facilitators and practice leading the exercises they have already experienced so that new people can experience AVP. The Lead Team will lead the first session and then coach while teams of participants facilitate exercises in this threeday workshop. Unlike the Basic and Advanced workshop, participants in this workshop do not have the option to pass since facilitators need to be willing to take risks and trust in the process and fellow participants.

No one is an expert in the field of nonviolence. The facilitator's job is, therefore, to create an environment for participants to experience community, affirmation, cooperation, communication, and conflict resolution problem solving. By drawing on their inner resources the participants find answers to problems presented in the workshop and feel empowered to handle conflict nonviolently.

____ 05 Agenda Preview. Explain why we preview the agenda. It's like doing a quick commercial for upcoming shows, getting people interested. It also enhances comfort level, which is important in creating a safe environment for taking the risk of trying new approaches to conflict. Finally explain reasons for evaluations that give participants power to change the agenda, and provide encouraging and constructive feedback to facilitators. Do preview.

____ 10 Adjective Name Exercise. Ask each person to choose a positive adjective that starts with the same sound or rhymes with their first name. Give examples. (Invite everyone to change their name as an indication of growth or change in their lives; add gesture to go with name for variety) Go in circle, each person repeating all previous names from the beginning. Group will help anyone who gets stuck in either selecting their name or recalling others. This is not a test. Give a minute to think.

05 Opening rap. Indicate that this is a review for people in this workshop, but that is important to clearly present in Basic Workshops. AVP history and general philosophy. AVP has Quaker connections; it does not have Quaker requirements. This is experiential rather than theoretical (not like a history class where you learn by taking notes and memorizing them). We don't bring answers. We sit in a circle to convey a sense of equality. Facilitators are 1ike participants. We lead rather than lecture. The success of this workshop is dependent upon participation. People can participate by sharing their thoughts and feelings and by sharing stories from their own experience. Overview of a workshop: Over these 3 days, we will experience building and belonging to our own workshop community. We will give each other and ourselves compliments and affirmations. We will cooperate to achieve win/win resolutions and group goals. During part of the workshop, we'll learn how to communicate better for the purpose of talking out our problems and resolving conflicts through peaceful means. Underlying these actions is the belief that if you "Think Transforming Power" you can change a potentially violent situation into a nonviolent

_____ 10 Gathering Question: Explain why we start each session with a gathering question and what sort of response is expected. It is a good way to get the whole group thinking about the main topic of the session and helps build trust by allowing people an easy way to share a brief personal experience or insight. Say and model response for the question: What's one reason I'm excited about doing an AVP Training for Facilitator's workshop. Say adjective name then respond.

____ 05 Ground rules: Explain why it is important to brainstorm or review ground rules near the beginning of every workshop.

Review ground rules and gestures: 1) slap both thighs repeatedly with hands to signal a putdown ("ouch") or violation of some other ground rule, 2) raise both arms up and rotate hands ("stars") to non-verbally praise someone for a particularly notable statement or action, and 3) facilitator will raise one hand high up to call for quiet, others should follow suit until the room in completely silent.	2&3). Helping out a teammate in need. Dealing with distracting participant behavior (will be covered on the third day of this workshop). Giving and receiving feedback. The importance and types of team clinics and self-evaluation.  20 Demonstration of a Facilitation team self-evaluation. Model this process with three members of Lead Team. Each team

The comment should focus on how the team did as a whole, not focusing on an individual. Next each team member will say one thing they think
